Two Points of View.

He had a lot of money, but no discoverable ancestors, and so it came that he affected contempt for pride of birth. And there was another man whose family tree was tall and unbranched, but who possessed no other assets worth mentioning. A discussion between those two men was of profound interest. Each avoided hurting the other's feelings, but it was easy to detect an undercurrent of antagonism. They concluded: "Say what you will," asserted the one, "it is a fine thing to come of good stock." "It's a finer thing," replied the other, with finality, "to own it."

30,000 ENGINEERS ORGANIZE.

Volunteer Reserve of Experts to Aid Country if War Comes.

The United States soon is to have something it never before had and, in the opinion of military men, urgently needs as a measure of self defense—a reserve force of 30,000 trained and skilled engineers, to be immediately available in time of war and to supplement the admittedly efficient but numerically inadequate corps of engineers of the regular army.

The foundation of the present plan was laid in the spring at a conference among several representative engineers, each standing at the head of his profession in his own specialty. Promoters in Chicago say that Secretary Garrison attended the conference. At this meeting the general scheme of organization was drawn up. The war department since has been engaged, it is said, under the secretary's direction, in working out the details and planning a bill to be introduced in congress next session to embody in legislation the formation of the corps.

FRANCE HOLDING HER COINAGE

Orders to Prevent Travelers From Taking It Out of Country.

Every traveler leaving France hereafter will be required to declare the amount of funds in coin in his possession. If more than 50 francs ($10) he will be compelled to exchange the excess for paper money, under a decree issued by the finance minister, Alexandre Ribot.

This action resulted from an investigation of the scarcity of silver coin, particularly in the frontier regions. It was ascertained that coins in circulation were being collected systematically for export. Even coppers and nickels were sought and exchanged at a premium.

It has been suggested unofficially, for the purpose of preventing hoarding during the war the government should announce its intention of issuing a new series of coins after the conclusion of peace, demonetizing those now in circulation.

CLOSE BOOKS OF LOAN SYNDICATE TOMORROW

New York, Oct. 4.—The half billion loan to the allies is guaranteed and the books of the loan syndicate will be closed at 10 o'clock tomorrow, Morgan & Company announced today. This means that enough banks and big investors have applied for blocks of bonds to assure that the entire loan will be taken up. Then the sale of the "baby" bonds of $100 denominations and the higher ones to the public will start.

After tomorrow applications of banks and investors for the bonds at 96 will not be received.

NO ERROR IN ACCOUNTS OF SUICIDING CASHIER

Ione, Ore., Oct. 4.—Positive declaration that the accounts of Clyde Brock, 36 years old, cashier of the Bank of Ione, who committed suicide by shooting himself Sunday, were straight, were made today by J. E. Cronan, president of the institution. There were no financial irregularities of any kind, he said. Brock came here from Heppner recently, where he was assistant cashier of the First National bank. Many friends had told him that he made a mistake in leaving a larger town for a smaller one and this is said to have preyed on his mind.

Brock was found breathing his last in a rear room of the bank by President Cronan.

BELLIGERENT AVIATORS HAD BUSY DAY SUNDAY

Amsterdam, Oct. 4.—Six aviators bombarded the German naval base of Zeebrugge Sunday. One was shot down and another forced to land at Neuville, Holland. The damage at Zeebrugge has not been ascertained.

Previous word from official and unofficial sources reported extreme aerial activity by the allies Sunday. Luxembourg was attacked, as well as other places, by a squadron of more than 70 airplanes.

FEAR TROUBLE WHILE THE MEXICANS CELEBRATE

Brownsville, Texas, Oct. 4.—American troops maintained a double guard along the Rio Grande, lest the celebration by the Mexicans of their fiesta, San Francisco day, lead, as in the past, to new trouble. Lieut. John Considine, of Seattle, and three troopers, riding along the river yesterday, detected five Mexicans in ambush. Dismounting they attacked the Mexicans, who escaped into the brush after firing a number of shots at the Americans.

BULGARIA DENIES AID FROM GERMAN GOVERNMENT

Sofia, Oct. 3.—(Delayed).—A Bulgarian news agency announced today it had been authorized by the government to deny the following rumors:

That German officers have arrived in Bulgaria to participate in the operations of railways and to command the army.

That Premier Radoslavoff has declared Bulgaria would receive from Germany $10,000,000 a month after it entered the war.

That there have been street disturbances and numerous arrests of leaders opposed to the government. That the cabinet, as reported by outside newspapers, is not fully supported by the people.

MILITARY TRAINING LIVE QUESTION IN PORTLAND

Portland, Oct. 4.—Voluntary military training in the public schools, a question which has divided Portland into rival camps, today has an advocate in Dr. Luther R. Dyott, pastor of the First Congregational church.

"I did not raise my boy to be a soldier,—no, perhaps not," said Dr. Dyott in the course of a sermon Sunday, "but let us hope you have reared him or you are rearing him to be a man, a noble citizen of America, who shall know that right at any price is better than some sorts of peace at any price."

1,800 AMERICANS IN BRITISH ARMY

Some Go For Excitement and Others Like to Fight.

HOW SOUTHERNER GOT IN.

First He Said He Was From South Carolina, but Changed His Mind When Refused and Decided He Was Born in Canada—Cry Out For Ammunition.

That many Americans are fighting for the allies is common knowledge. There are a lot of them in France's foreign legion and a lot more in the various Canadian contingents. The writer was told by one in close touch with the British war office that 1,800 Americans are now members of the British army, says the Detroit Free Press. The war office, of course, has to notify the relatives of these men in case they are killed, wounded or missing, as some of them have been, and it is thus that an approximate figure as to their number can be given.

This, of course, is not a matter that the war office talks about. One is guilty of an indiscretion is even mentioning it. No American is allowed to enlist as such. That might make diplomatic complications. Most of the sons of the United States who join say they are Canadians. Of late one has heard of a number of young southerners who have enrolled themselves under the union jack. When one of them went to the recruiting office the following conversation took place:

"Where were you born?"

"I was bawn, sub, in Spartanburg, S. C."

"The United States? We can't take you if you are an American. Can't you take a little stroll and think hard and see if you weren't born somewhere else?"

The walk is taken. A few minutes later the candidate returns.

His Mind Is Changed.

"Well, sub, I've thought that matter ovah, and I realize now that I was bawn in Hamilton, Ont."

"Good man! Right! Now come and see the doctor."

A good number of these American born recruits are West Point and Annapolis men and thus get commissions practically at once, for, of course, the crying need of the British army at the present time is for officers. One of the southerners, this time a Virginian, was badly wounded at Neuve Chapelle. He told an acquaintance of the writer's that a shell which exploded near him there killed twenty-three men and sixteen horses. While in England he made this remark to an American:

"I'm making a collection while I'm here. Yes, ma'am, I'm making a collection of eggshells."

"Eggshells! Whatever for?"

"Well, ma'am, it does seem to me that those are the only kind of shells that the British war office thinks we need to throw at the Germans."

Fighting Flies in Flanders.

I heard a good story of another young southerner, formerly a member of the Richmond Light Blues and now a captain in the British army, who listened patiently to a lecture on "camp sanitation" given by his colonel, and then very courteously and deferentially asked his superior officer if he might be allowed to demonstrate to the men some of the things he had learned in the American army. The colonel, a bit on his dignity, but with good humor, asked the American if he really thought he could add anything to their knowledge. The southerner's reply was a question as to whether any of them ever had been in a real hot country, like Cuba or the Philippines, where there really were flies. The British officers confessed they had not.

"The defect in the sanitary arrangements you propose," went on the southerner, "is that they are adapted to England, where you have no flies. Everybody in this country fancies that flies here are a kind of plague, but the ratio as compared with the United States is actually about one fly here to a thousand there. In Flanders," went on the American, "you will get flies, so I wish you would let me demonstrate to the men our ideas of sanitation, fly traps and incinerators to cope with the condition that will obtain there."

The colonel gave his consent forthwith. A bit later he found the American surrounded by a crowd of men, demonstrating the matters he had mentioned. In order to work better he had shed his tunic and was working in his shirt sleeves. The scandalized superior officer held his peace at the time, but later apprised the amused American that it was not considered good form for an officer to remove his tunic. He said it simply wasn't done.

Why have all these young Americans thrown in their lot with the British army? Do they all feel in duty bound to do their bit toward putting the kibosh on Germany? These questions I put directly to an American woman who knows.

"Well," she replied, "I know of one case in which a girl is at the bottom of the man's enlistment here, and with the others I guess it's sheer devilment." Other Americans have told me that they joined the army for the sake of the "excitement." Still others, however, have affirmed that they enlisted just for the sake of seeing to it personally that "Kaiser Bill got his."

AGED MAN COMMITS SUICIDE AT CONDON

Condon, Ore., Oct. 2.—Ill health was believed today to have caused the suicide of E. David, 75 years old, a former state representative, who hanged himself from the fire escape of the Condon hotel. Blood poisoning recently caused the amputation of one of his legs.

OREGON CAVE DWELLER INHERITS KANSAS FORTUNE

Baker, Oct. 2.—After living the life of a hermit in a cave near Baker for ten years, and having barely enough to subsist on, Cyrus Tedrow, 80 years old, is en route to Kansas today to claim a fortune said to amount to thousands. His relatives had long sought him.
